Hailey uses her analytical background to help clients protect and defend their intellectual property by simplifying complex legal issues and guiding them through each step of the process.

Hailey obtained her undergraduate degree from Brigham Young University (2022) where she majored in economics with a minor in business and graduated Magna Cum Laude. She continued her education at Brigham Young University Law School (2025) on a full-tuition scholarship as a Clark Scholar. At BYU Law she competed on both the trial advocacy and moot court teams. She also volunteered at the BYU Community Legal Clinic, representing clients with immigration, wills and estates, and criminal law matters.

While in law school, Hailey worked abroad at a German law firm, researching structures of private equity and venture capital investment funds. In addition, Hailey worked for the Salt Lake County District Attorney's office where she assisted on a variety of felony prosecutions involving everything from drug crimes, to domestic violence, to murder. Hailey has extensive experience researching, drafting motions and responses, and analyzing evidence to best serve her clients.

In her free time, Hailey enjoys golfing, cooking, and traveling with her husband. She has been to 27 countries so far, and plans to keep adding more.
